You cannot imagine about living a worry-free life without the use of mobile phones. The necessity of using a mobile phone has gone significant to such an extent that it has become a basic need, a part and parcel of life. No wonder communication technology has transformed the way we live lives, the way we do business, the way we stay connected. It is prepaid card sim rather than post paid that users generally prefer. A survey has proven that 97 percent of the Indian youth use the prepaid card sim. Reasons are obvious. You need not provide a whole lot of documents as are required in a postpaid connection nor do you need to worry about hefty monthly bills. Prepaid card sim lets you know how much balance you have and leads to intelligent usage. Moreover, your prepaid card sim may come with lifetime validity against a nominal amount. You can receive calls for years together which are again negated in a post paid sim.

Choose plans that let you make free phone call. Yes, you will come across a dedicated night plan that lets you make free phone call against a lump sum denomination. And then there are other free phone call plans as well using which you will only smile. For example, if you use Kickstart 551 for Rs. 551, you get 1,20,000 seconds of free phone call to the same operator and 42,000 seconds free phone call to other operators. This plan comes with a validity period of three months. I-gain 197 lets users get 2000 local free phone call minutes to the same operator and 700 local minutes to other networks in a month. Similar free phone call plans are also available for Rs. 37, Rs. 38, Rs. 198, and the list goes on. A search online will well serve your purpose. Again it is choosing the right prepaid card sim that will make all the difference. This is because not every sim comes with such a whole lot of offers â€“ pocket friendly offers that stay on or newer innovative offers getting introduced to the advantage of the users.

When we speak about GPRS in India, it is all about the relationship between internet and mobile phones. Gone were the days when it was the desktop with an Internet connection that facilitated users stay connected. Thanks to the fast development of communication. Now GPRS in India lets you stay connected with the world no matter where you are â€“ at home, at the office, on the move. It is no exaggeration to say that you carry the world on your pocket!

In areas where 3G connectivity is still a far fetched affair and even in areas where this facility is available, GPRS in India still holds greater momentum. Cost effectiveness is the buzzword here. What matters is a blend of uninterrupted connectivity, speed, and price. Well, you need no big money to stay connected. Even a Rs. 5 recharge for enjoying GPRS in India will well serve your purpose!
