To become a wedding DJ certain pre-requisite qualities and skills are necessary which you may not find in a normal DJ. When you get your first offer to DJ a wedding, you should be well prepared with your songs and tracks. Remember in a wedding people from every class, all age groups are present whom you have to tackle. You cannot play songs of your own choice but you have to change tracks after every minute according to the demands of the guests present at the wedding. If you are not prepared and do not have broad knowledge do not hesitate to refuse the offer.

At a wedding you have to play music in tune with the guests present on the occasion. Wedding couple will certainly give you tips and lists of the tracks which they want to play on their wedding. In addition to that you also have to keep preparation to fulfill the demands of people from different age groups. If you have a caliber to play the music that is liked by all the people present, there is no difficulty and you can win hearts of many people present there.

It is better you spend some time with the wedding couple few days before the wedding and ask them about their taste of music as well as get some hints about their family and friends. Make a list of the particular songs which the couple want to play during some special moments such as during entrance, for parents etc. This gives a meaning to the occasion and everyone feels happy when they are specially recognized at the wedding party.

To show your potential skill and activity at a wedding, your equipment should be in a good condition. Keep a separate pair of everything so that you do not have to face embarrassment if anything goes wrong. You should have an idea to handle every situation when you commit to DJ a wedding.

Experience is a key to success in every profession. So, you talk to your friend who had a great experience as a wedding DJ. He will feel happy to educate you about tits and bits that you may experience when Djing a wedding. You will learn many things from him and improve your show by learning from him.

At the end it is important that you keep one thing in mind throughout the day that you have to do best to entertain people and you have to use your full energy and strength to make everyone happy present on the occasion so that they form a picture in their mind and remember you for the next occasion.
