Before you makes your choice regarding a suitable partycateraar, here are some points to take into account:

See whether the caterers have a license. This will give you a surety that the service that you are hiring has a legal permission.

Make sure cleanliness and hygiene factors are accounted by the caterers essentially. Find out where actually the food is being cooked. No compromise with this factor.

Transportation of food from where it has been packed to where it is to be used should be done carefully. Fresh and healthy food is as important as it being tasty and devouring. Refrigerated trucks, warming units, etc. should used for proper movement of the cooked food to the event venue.
