The quality of life in Delhi is undoubtedly much higher in comparison to other cities in India. Well it would not be wrong to say that this lovely city also attracts many NRIs when it comes to buying a new home. The advent of the metro train running in the city it resulted into many advantages which the residents of Delhi and NCR are quite proud of.

Even during the recession, Delhi NCR is still attracting many property investors as well as home buyers. In the world map, this cosmopolitan city is already marked as the popular green city and in addition, it is regarded as the hub of multinational companies. A new visitor gets amazed to see the buildings which are built with the international standard statistics. For most of the real estate companies operating in different places in India consider Delhi and its NCR as the perfect niche for implementation of their new projects.

There are many factors which have to be reviewed before buying a residential property in Delhi, the heart of India as well as in its suburbs. If you take a drive to Gurgaon , you would surely see the sky rocketing buildings which are homes of many multinational firms and other corporate. Significantly, there is an attractive rise in the residential apartments and independent houses. Next to Gurgaon, Noida is also filled with the excellent residential infrastructure.

There is an apparent rivalry between the two NCRs: Gurgaon and NCR, in terms of buying a residential property. Most of the critics opine that Gurgaon is at the higher podium leaving Noida a step down. Gurgaon has the international airport. Because of this famous location, most of the property consultants in the region strongly hold on to their deals. It has been reported that Noida will also have an international airport. This would be an added advantage for the residents as well as for the aspiring people who have been hunting for buying their dream homes in this growing city.

It is the set of home-buyers that the price of a residential property in India is being viewed as the right-most capital. It is true that the contemporary market price of houses is a bit costly but still there is a good flow of middle class buyers as it is revealed by some real estate surveys. Home loans are a great assistance when small income can obviously avail the best of India realty.
