Kripalu ji Maharaj brings life to ancient scriptures by Strauss Brunt

Article published on January 13th 2012 | Others

The modern age is technologically developed, it understands science, it understands technology and it understands the calculations of Modern day lives, but the knowledge and wisdom that prevailed in ancient times has been lost in to the darkness of ignorance. One of the main reasons of this ignorance is that the ancient scriptures are written in Sanskrit, the scriptural language of ancient India. modern day civilization is not well versed in this ancient language and therefore the knowledge and true wisdom of life that was written in these scriptures thousands years ago is still unknown.

Kripalu ji Maharaj studied all the ancient texts and realized the true meanings contained in those texts. He studied deeply all the religions of world and found that all religions are based on the basic principle of life that is love. Every religion respects humanity and has some good teachings. And therefore he never propounded any new theory. He believed that all religions of the world are equally good and preached the human beings to follow the religious teachings of their religion honestly. He taught the preachings of ancient scriptures including Vedas and Upnishads in common language of contemporary people and spread this knowledge to different parts of world.

Kripalu Ji Maharaj bridged the gap between all religious teachings and conveyed the message of true love and devotion. He preached that pure love and devotion is the easiest way to attain the goal of life. He teaches all human beings to love one another and develop sympathy for all living beings. He believes in everybody's own freedom and encourages all human beings to respect the freedom of all living beings. He treats all people and religions equally and brings everybody towards the path of compassion and brotherhood.

Kripalu Ji Maharaj believes that all human beings have equal rights of life. Everyone enjoys equal rights to individual freedom, equal rights to food, water and shelter and equal rights to individual interpretation. According to him, it is our duty to help the humanity and alleviate the pains of poor and needy people. It is his inspiration that Jagatguru Kripalu Parishat is serving the society with dedication. The parishat runs many charitable hospitals and organizes medical camps from time to time. This parishat has established many schools and colleges to impart education with moral values to the young generation so as to build a better nation tomorrow.
