Only Roger Hamilton Can Bring About the Positive Abstractions by Corwin Smith

Frustration, anger, misery, powerlessness to make that change, and the feeling that is akin to that of a caged bird can lead a man or rather any human being to act in ways that are unacceptable in the well cultivated and well cultured societies of the world. But from where do all these feelings crop up. Where lays the source of these emotions that can in just in no time take the form of a passion and bring about a fury that would be uncontrollable and ruthless in tenor. The source of this fury, the source of these malevolent abstractions, is the self respect that every individual living on this planet craves for. But the society that as described by the great genius of the 19th century Karl Marx has been divide into the â€˜havesâ€™ and the â€˜have notesâ€™. And the negative abstractions are present i both the echelons. And the root cause is the lack of money or excess of money with the have notes and the haves respectively. Roger Hamilton realized it a long time back, and put everything that he had with him and inside of him to change the abstractions from negative to positive.

But it takes eons for a change that itself would last eons to materialize. And Roger Hamilton realizes it. And thus he is doing everything that he could to bring that change in the minds of the people around the globe that would ultimately percolate down to the society and change it from a civilized one to a more human one.

Roger Hamilton is an individual who is active in the domain of wealth creation. And wealth or in the crudest terms the â€˜moneyâ€™ is the driving force behind all the actions that the man takes. And thus he realized that the improvement that needs to be done is to be done in the system that controls the financial operations of the world. And he knows that as long as this system is well entrenched in its massive crevice, it would keep on making the rich the richer and the poorer the poor, and ultimately would make both of them the unhappiest souls in the world. Unhappy because both of them are far away from what the existence wanted them to be and to do here. And returning back to the Nature is the only solution. And wealth creation is the only domain that is left without any trace of Nature in it.

The theories of Roger Hamilton that are based on discovering the natural flow of the individual should form the backbone of almost all the activities of wealth creation. And once that natural flow is discovered by the individual, the process of earning wealth would not only become his second nature but also bring him the happiness that he so very much misses whether wealthy or not.
