There canâ€™t be another Sin City by Heather Protz

Las Vegas is the right place to celebrate in the wildest sense of the world. There are cities that donâ€™t sleep all across the world. But this one never sleeps. Vegas functions 24 hours, throughout the year. Itâ€™s a celebrity lifestyle in Vegas. This city has been the stage that gave â€˜birthâ€™ to a lot of prodigies (Elvis Presley included). Itâ€™s scalding hot (not the weather), painfully dazzling (it wonâ€™t damage your retina) and cues in an aneurysm (a caution for the perverts). Whether itâ€™s your first, second or twenty third visit to this completely delectable piece of heaven, youâ€™ll always come back for more. And itâ€™s wonâ€™t only be the gambling calling.

The Must Seeâ€™s:

For LV beginners, get accustomed to the term â€˜Stripâ€™. Not denoting an uptown strip club, no, thank you. Itâ€™s a 4.2 mile stretch outside the city limits holding the worldâ€™s best luxurious hotels. 19 of 25 the worldâ€™s largest hotels decorate the Strip. Accommodating malls, circuses, gambling and non gambling hotels, the Strip is le magnifique.

The Bellagio:

Oh man, just the sight of this one will drive you crazy. Whatâ€™s special? Like every other luxurious hotel in Vegas the Bellagio is extra amazing, extraordinary and extra expensive. But The Bellagio is not just a hotel. It has comfortable spas, Mediterranean style villas, exotic cuisine, fountain shows and the addictive gambling centers. It also has a theatre. Yes, a theatre where awe-filling acrobatics and out of this world medleys are staged in, on and above water. The Cirque de Soleilâ€™s O theatres plenty of shows, acts and exhibitions and is definitely a must see, if you donâ€™t get to enjoy the secure and lush accommodations.

Caesarâ€™s palace:

Remember that hotel from Hangover I? If you can recall the name, Caesarâ€™s the place. While Bellagio is based off on a Tuscany theme, this one is ancient Greek. With Roman culture inspired gables, pillars and statues this is one ah-may-zing place to stay. Youâ€™d wish you could live here. Forever. Itâ€™s full of swimming pools, deluxe suites, elegant fountains and grand game centers. Not only that, itâ€™s got A-class clubhouses and when you get bored of purring over the inside, get ready to experience the drunk-on-money outside.

Mon Ami Gabi:

If youâ€™re that kind of a person who loves to watch beautiful people, this classy French Bistro is the right place. Granted, you can people watch just about anywhere in the Strip, here is where you can carry on watching (I didnâ€™t say stalk!) your favorite celebrities in private. Apart from the scrumptious food and classic age inspired interiors, there is a whole lot on the menu- Crepes, Quiches and Escargot. Served with the wine of course. Mon Ami Gabi has a fabulous wine collection, suited for the passive side of Fabulous Las Vegas.

Mandalay bay:

Vegas is not only about gambling. The Shark Reef at Mandalay bayâ€™s proof enough for that. Itâ€™s a public aquarium to see and swim with sharks. Not advisable for whimps and cowards, the sharks here are set loose, no cages preventing them tasting a bit of your flesh. But donâ€™t worry, youâ€™ll get help.

The Less-Knownâ€™s:

Chocolate Factory:

Whoa there, hold up. This is not some kidâ€™s special. Not a â€œgrown upâ€• thing either (get your mind the gutter). Itâ€™s a plain chocolate factory. Okay, you have some chocolate factory 20 miles outside your town. But I bet my golden horses, that you havenâ€™t seen one like this. Never mind the taste-chocolate tastes good anywhere, at Ethelâ€™s you can actually see how this sinfully delicious threat to mankind is being made. You can spend an entire morning here, savoring the chocolates amidst greener gardens.

Bob Taylorâ€™s Ranch House:

Just the thought of the yummy steaks on this supper clubâ€™s menu will make your mouth water. Celebrities in the late 40â€™s drove upon this steak houseâ€™s then beat-up path just to get a taste of itâ grilled beef. Now, itâ€™s been moved to an easily locatable destination and everything on the menu is cheap!

There can be no secrets in this world, and Las Vegas is just the same. It has no best secrets, just lesser known to the human kind. Come explore, celebrate and live your life like never before.
