Care for Puppies by Oriansind

Puppies expect their owners to take care of them in the following narration.

I am small, and not as wise as you, and since it is you who have your wits, it is also you who must use it. I do not know that textbooks should be nice and full. Located bag on the floor is open, it may well be that I will want to "read" a little in the books, and it is unfair if I get scolded when it is you who have been messy. Help me to clear away things you are afraid.

When I sleep well and wake up, I have to pee. In the kitchen, where I grew up, I lived and my siblings in a box of papers in. We were so numerous that no one could manage to carry out all together when we had slept. But now I am only one and you are many, so you have to look at me, and bear me out as soon as I wake up. As soon as I learn to pee outside.

When I have eaten, I have to do greater things, but not every time. You will soon learn when it suits me when I have to. Carry me out and take care of me until I have done for me. Still, I might try to do from me, but I say from - on my way. I walk restlessly about, sounds maybe a little - and suddenly I sit down. Can you get me out before I have done something before, it is wise. As I understand it is out the door I need to make me clean, and when I go to the door itself.

Soon you have to walk with me on a leash. Take good care of me - do not let me run loose if there are cars or trams nearby. Bring a plastic bag in your pocket when going out on tour. When I have made from me, remove the bag. Put your hand into a plastic bag, remove droppings in your hand and around the head, tied a knot in the bag and throw it in the nearest garbage can. Then at least I do not blame roadsides. This may do well to teach all of you meet - there are so few who do so. If everyone did, it would be fonder of our dogs.

Now I've told a lot about little me. Do you know me better now? But the most important thing is to end. Never forget to love me! I will be your best friend as long as I live - if you also want it. But if you really try to get to know me, look at me, talking to me, do you learn gradually how a dog thinks and feels. Remember that I am a little living creature with feelings almost as theirs. I can be angry, happy, sad and scared. I can cry, wear a face and smile. You should now be my family, and if we get on well together, do you understand me.
