Decorating your walls with your memories from canvas prints by Andrew Bourke

Article published on July 5th 2012 | Photography

Having your photos printed on canvas really is a fine way to display your photos and image on your walls, itâ€™s the panicle of printing and really does make a huge difference in the appearance to your wall decoration which is why allot of interior designers will use this type of photo printing to as it stands out allot more than having a normally photograph in a frame. When having a photo printed onto a woven fabric like canvas you get a really pore and art looking effect and it give off the effect that the photo you have had printed looks a bit like a painting to, this sort of look is called a giclee canvas art look.

Most of the canvas prints that you find online these days are made with very high quality materials and they are combined to make a work of art, the best type of canvas you can buy would either be polcotton canvas or 100% cotton canvas and these are the two types of canvas that your better of having when you get your photos printed. Also the frame would need to be a stretcher bar frame for the best possible stretch and per longed tightness.

Personalized canvas printing with your photos make great wall art, especially if youâ€™re going for a very subdued look that gives of a tone of your personality to as artwork can say allot about how a person feels and will set the mood of a room which is why having something either colourful or something very designer like on a canvas photo print can really benefit the decoration in that very room your decoration. If you have already decorated the living room and your just want to give another room a bit of a lift then a really good idea would be to get a canvas print for the kitchen, reason being is kitchens can look a little boring and lifeless and they are simply there for the job but if you hang up a canvas print of anything, if itâ€™s not a photo on canvas from your own photos then maybe a good looking scenery or landscape picture would really make a big difference and it would give the kitchen that big lift in colour and purpose.

Allot of people tend to have their most favourite memorise locked away in the nearest draw or upstairs in the bedroom and donâ€™t give having them printed a second thought but really those memories are the best times of their lives and if you was to have any of those special photos printed onto canvas and then hung then in plain sight then not only would they look great, modern and give your living space a really cool look but every time you take a glance of that canvas print or someone mentions it because of the great workmanship you will be reminded of that really unforgettable moment on your life and that will be the cherry on the cake to having that wonderful memories printed onto a canvas print and thatâ€™s when you will realizes what a great choice it was to have it printed rather than having it in a draw that you rarely go to open.
