What is more important and close you your heart than your family and friends, have your ever thought about how you can celebrate their lives and have them in view at all times in your very own home, one really great way of doing this is the old fashion way of having photographs in frames and having them hung on your most prized walls, you could do this or if you really wanted to raise the bar and get something stylish and very unique then a good way of doing this would be to have a canvas print made of a certain photo that means the world to you and once itâ€™s been printed on canvas and stretched over a real wooden frame then you will be able to the great effect that it gives off as its basically turning your photos into excellent pieces of art.

The best thing about having a canvas print made from your photos is that you get to see what ever photo you have printed brought to life and it really does compliment the photo with all of the vibrant colours that you can achieve along with the image looking very Sharpe and enlarged to. Once this has been stretched over the wood stretcher bar frame you will be able to see the image so that it even looks like itâ€™s giving off a 3d effect to and this really makes the photo on canvas stick out all, especially if you have had your canvas photo prints printed onto a frame that is thicker than you normal standard think frame as you can get gallery wrap frames with your canvas prints as well as the standard one, the difference really does stand out but not to worry as even the standard 18mm frame looks brilliant as canvas prints no matter what is printed and what frame its stretched over you will always end up with a brilliant work of art and it will last a life time to.

if you do come across a website that is offering a photo canvas printing service and your thinking of having some of your most precious photos printed then it might be a good idea to have some special effect added to your photo before the canvas printer goes to print, especially if your photo is of no high quality then you will be able to mask this a little by simply adding a black and white effect to the photo before printing and it will take the eye of any resolution problems to, this is a great tip if youâ€™re unsure of the quality of your photo or image. One really good way to check if your photo does love up to having it printed large is by checking the resolution of the file size which is found in the properties on your computer of your image, this will let you know if your image will be able to have it enlarged, if not then trying the black and white effect over your image will make a small difference.
