Photos and images printed to canvas by Andrew Bourke

canvas printing these days is looked upon as a very cool and modern way to express yourself with your favourite images and photos, you can show them off in a way that should show your personality to say yeah I'm different and hip and cool at the same time as really a canvas print is like a blank canvas and you can basically print whatever you want on it and call it art because it looks like art and it is art in every person's eyes that will view it.

If you were to take your photo and canvas it to a canvas print to make a canvas print from it then you would see the benefits that come with having this done, lots of people tend to get a small canvas print made like a 6" x 9" canvas just to see what they think first a bit like a sample canvas print then once they see the results then normally you would want to get some more printed but at a bigger size because having any size canvas print made looks really great but the bigger the better I would say. It's more about seeing the quality and the colours that come with that quality that makes the image that you have provided to be printed that little more special.

I really love the idea of having your photos printed to canvas, there is a lot of different ways you can have it done and if you wanted any advice before you had your photos printed to canvas then the experts will gladly point you in the right direction as canvas photo printing is more looked upon as being an art form and not something that is rushed so all the time that any canvas print is made then you can be assured that your canvas photo print is being made with passion from start to finish.

If you can't decide on a photo to have printed but you really want to have a canvas print done then maybe it would be a good idea to have a professional photographer take some picture of you and your family first then you can ask them for the hard copy of the images to forward to your canvas printer or if you weren't too sure on how to do that then you could select a few images and ask them to order you canvas prints for you but I might have to mention that photographers may charge a little fee for this but at least you know that job will be done correctly and which will result in you have some really beautiful canvas prints made from the best photos and memories that will last for a lifetime. So next time you take some shots and you just messing around a good tip would be to try and leave a little gap around the sides of the photo for some background and then you never know because you might want to use that photo one day for a canvas print and having the little bit of background around the sides will help you get the wrap around effect on the canvas print frame which is very handy for the canvas printers when processing your order.
