Photography has become a popular profession these days. If you are keen to become a photographer or want to update your photography skills, you must get yourself enrolled in a photography training course. There are various photography training courses available but you must join the one that focuses on the skills and offers detailed and fully illustrated notes. The following courses aim at enhancing your knowledge about photography.

BEGINNERS PHOTOGRAPHY COURSE

This course is especially designed for the beginners who are new to the field of photography. The duration of this course is two weeks. If you want to know how a camera works but have no knowledge of photography, then you must join this course. Various functions and controls of the camera are taught in this course. You will also learn about the exposure and focus modes, camera menus, white balance adjustments etc. This course makes photography enjoyable.

ADVANCED PHOTOGRAPHY COURSE

If you have already done the beginners photography course and possess some understanding of the photographic process, then you must get yourself enrolled in this course. It is a six-week course that covers many subjects such as shooting digital panoramics, still-life set-ups, location portraits, posing groups, exposure latitude, studio lighting set-ups etc. This course also lets the students undergo a photo project. The students will also be given a full and detailed set of notes.

DIGITAL IMAGING COURSE

The duration of this course is five weeks. It covers subjects such as color, exposure and contrast adjustments along with complicated subjects like multi-layer montage. The students will be taught how the files can be imported and saved, how to resample, resize and crop the images, how to use selection tools, moving selections, feathering elections etc.

HOME STUDY PHOTOGRAPHY COURSE

Many photography courses are combined together to create this course. It is a distance learning course and you can learn it by staying at your place. The notes are designed with a lot of photographs and illustrations. All the modules are sent to you in the form of a disc. You can send an email or take advice from the ex-students in case you have some queries. Various projects are included in every module that need to be completed by you. These projects cover the practical aspect of the course. There is no duration of the course. You can complete it at your own pace.

These courses are amongst the best Photography Training Course. You can choose one that suits your requirements.
