Catharine Young gets campaign money as a gift! by Catharine Young

Article published on July 31st 2012 | Politics

Whether you believe it or not but Senator Catharine Young is getting funds for her campaign to be held in November. The re-election will take place for competing to the office of the New York State Senate with a total number of seats to be 63. But grabbing one seat for Catharine Young would not at all be easy as the competition is really tough this time. But when it is Cathy then there has to be some way out no matter how much needs to be fetched in return. Supporting the landlords while ignoring the interests of the tenants is the smartest way that she has found out.

What is more beneficial?

September 12th is also an important day for her as it is the primary day of election. Being one of the members of the American legislator, she is said to be competing for the 33 seats of the Republican Party against the Democratic with a total 29 seats. Though she does fulfill all the criteriaâ€™s for getting nominated at the election but the path taken is surely not the right one from the humanitarian grounds. Being the state senate from 57th district, it has been found that all the bills that have been passed by her are really harsh for the tenants of NYC.

Who finances more?

According to a recent statistics, it has been found that nearly $127,050 has been received for financing the campaign of the senator, Catharine Young. Also while comparing the instate verses out state finance it was found that nearly 86% had come from in-state. To bring in more despair, it was found out of 10 industries; nearly 78% was contributed by real estate. Public sector unions and home builders occupy the second and third position respectively. In fact even the hospitals had no less contribution in making Catherine young to be winning this yearâ€™s re-election.

PACs are no left behind!

Also considering the statistics of comparison between the individuals and PACs, the top contributors were employees or family members or even the committee of political action. It was New York State Association for Affordable Housing who is the top contributor to this campaign financing. Thus 82% of the finance was gifted by the PACs in return of which the tenants are bearing the costs. Among others there are Police Benevolent Association and Real Estate Board of New York occupying the secondary positions.

Is she a human?

There are plenty of reasons for such an outrageous support from the real estate sector. The bills that passed in the month of April were S6472, S5152 and S5041A. If you have a detailed look into each of these bills then you would be wondering whether the tenants are to be given room at rent or not. In return of a large sum of money, is it possible for a senator to pass the bills against the poor tenants who live at the mercy of the room owner?

Though all the bills are in Assembly but how could Catherine Young be stopped from making the tenants feel more miserable.
