According to Calgary real estate board, the residential sales in Calgary have shown a rapid increase in the past few months. This is a positive change if one looks back at tepid sales activity in the early months of 2011, perhaps as an after effect of the economic recession. MLS stats Calgary indicate that the trend is likely to continue. The improvements in migration and employment have led to a greater demand for housing and residential sales have improved at least by 15 per cent.
