Making Money out of Scrap Metal in Detroit by James Blee

Article published on March 21st 2012 | Recreation

There are plenty of dealers who can give you a good price for scrap metal in Detroit. However, the cost or the dollar price paid by the dealers could vary a bit and if you have a large weight of metal to be sold off, it is important to make sure you are well updated with the rates. You can check online for those scrap buyers who are known to offer traditionally the best prices for scrap metal. Detroit has quite a few scrap buyers who recycle the metal and accept both ferrous and non-ferrous metal. Such scrap buyers will accept most kinds of metal, clean or unclean, as they have advanced processes to separate out what they finally need.

For example, you can sell stainless steel, electric motors, catalytic converters, wheel weights and transmissions, alternators, starters, clean and unclean aluminum radiators and aluminum bumpers for a very good price. Aluminum clip and cast, extruded aluminum, aluminum cans and aluminum wire, aluminum wheel with or without chrome plating, auto radiators with copper or aluminum core, copper tubes with aluminum fins, heater cores, old sheet and wheels with or without valve stems will all fetch a good price.

You can also shell hard brass and brass shells which fetch a good price compared to other forms of scrap metal. Insulated copper too is profitable while sheet copper can fetch an exciting price when you sell it to a scrap buyer. If you have yellow brass, clean or dirty brass radiators and engraver brass, it is not a bad idea to find a professional scrap buyer who can offer a good price for all the metal that you have to offer. Some scrap buyers can also purchase entire vehicles for the metal alone. Scrap iron, die cast scrap, alloy free iron and motor casts can also be sold for good money.
