While it is a well known fact that men across the globe feel a natural attraction towards Chinese women, it is also common knowledge that most people using Chinese dating sites tend to harbor certain pre-conceived notions about these females. On the other hand not many people are aware that the same holds true for Chinese women as well. In fact it is quite common for these women to choose a foreign mate for online dating based on their outlook about the country of their origin. Listed below are some common perceptions harbored by oriental ladies about some major foreign countries and their people.

Britain: Despite the fact that Hong Kong, the last colony of Britain, has been united with China for more than 15 years, Chinese females generally consider the British men to be imperialistic and aggressive. They feel that British men using Chinese dating sites exhibit traits that suggest a considerable decline in their gentlemanly behavior.

Germany: The general impression about Germany as a country among the Chinese women is that of a rigorous nation. Chinese females by and large consider German men to be technically well advanced, hard working and disciplined, even though they find them a bit stubborn about certain issues.

France: Like in the other parts of the world, Chinese ladies also consider France to be the hub of fashion and romance. Most of them feel that most French men are addicted to women and wine and love to spend their life in style and luxury. It is also a common perception that these men tend to be extremely proud and swanky.

Italy: For most Chinese females Italy is a country that has an abundance of both crime and beauty. A large number of females avoid dating Italian men on Chinese dating sites for the fear of becoming unknowingly associated with the Mafia. However, these women also hold great reverence for the ancient art and culture of the great Roman Empire.
