Telephone hotlines for psychic readings has been going around for many years. In the 90's, these kinds of hotlines are frequently advertised through television and print. As a result, many people to these telephone-based readings in order to get advice about life, love, career, and relationships.

During those days, whenever a person wants to receive psychic advice , all he or she needs to do is call an 800 or 900 number, and he or she will instantly get connected to an expert reader who will make predictions and advice based on signs and symbols from the spiritual realm. Under this arrangement, payments are made via phone bill. In many cases, credit card billing is also possible, especially if the client wants to prevent huge one time payments each month.

Despite the fact that telephone-based psychic readings are beneficial, it also has its disadvantages. The ultimate disadvantage of calling a hotline is that you will get charged for each minute of your call. This can be a headache, especially if you have a long background story to tell before you can ask your main question to the psychic.

Some people have found a solution to the by-minute billing, and that is signing up for free trials. However, free trials limit the amount of minutes that any individual can consume on a hotline call. This is an added inconvenience to many people.

For people who find telephone hotlines extremely inconvenient for their particular situation, there are other options by which psychic readings can be received. The internet now presents dozens of options for people to get live psychic advice without face to face meetings or making a single phone call. Here are some of those options:

Psychic Readings Through Email â€“ Email is a terrific alternative to hotlines because it helps get rid of huge one time payments. Aside from this, email is a more confidential form of communication. If your concern or question is confidential in nature, using email is more practical than a phone conversation. What's great about this option is that there are no boundaries as to the length of the emails that are being sent. You can send a very short paragraph, or you can receive an email reading which contains several pages of useful information.

Text A Psychic â€“ Using your mobile phone to send an SMS to a psychic is another great way to get rid of expensive phone bills and credit card interest rates. All you have to do is send a unique operator code to a psychic website hotline and indicate the psychic you want to consult with. The rest is usually taken good care of by reputable psychic websites on the web.

Live Webcam Chat â€“ Aside from the options mentioned above, interacting with a psychic through live webcam chat is a great alternative because it helps build rapport and familiarity between two individuals engaging in psychic readings.
