The Chariot and its Meaning

The tarot card of the month of February 2012 is the chariot.

Also known as Lord of Triumph of Light or Le Chariot, this card symbolizes water element, control, force and makes use of emotions in controlling what he wants deep down in the heart and use them for meaningful purposes.

The Chariot also represents the person's ability to control one's energy rather than be ruled by it. This energy is represented by the depiction of the two horses that are being driven. And symbolically, it relates to the chariot's ability in harnessing his animal instincts. This self-control enables him to let the reins go giving him freedom to carve his own path.

The Chariot, the Card of Personality

From a developmental perspective, as the card of inner self-awareness, the Chariot embodies the formation of the personality.

After the individuation of the Lovers, the Chariot soon discovers himself in self-exploration finding who he truly is.

Standing for our goal-oriented motivations, this card aims to develop his persona within the context of society. Fundamentally, this tarot has the opportunity to choose an identity that fits representing the tremendous focus and drive in accomplishing the goal and win the battle.

The armor of the Chariot epitomizes the outward expression of his personality. The armor is the mask of his persona firmly acknowledged by his ego, and in spite of that, the Chariot still remains to be firmly aware that his persona is not his true identity.

The Chariot characterizes the young man defining himself in his new world. With this new knowledge of himself, the Chariot is privileged to have the understanding of the rules that society places upon him. However, he has developed ability to manipulate these rules to get what he wants.

The Chariot as the Symbol for the Month of February

The Chariot appearing in the month of February serves as a constant reminder to keep going and tough it out.

Associated with this card is the Sagittarians for their strength of mind and can-do attitude.

With The Chariot, it will be easy to keep going charging along taking down any difficult obstacles this month.

Representing and maintaining the balance of control between the light and the dark in our natures, any athlete, especially those who have trained for the Olympics, has run the gambit that is represented by The Chariot.

Though at times, it may seem as though this card is plowing ahead, making it appear that you are just barely hanging on. However, you must not forget that you are the one in control neither the horses nor the chariot can rein in your spirit and determination.

The appearance of the Chariot in a tarot card reading signifies that you may feel somewhat confused. In this instance, there is a need for you to take a long hard look at the different aspects of your life. In instances, when you don't know which way to go, or you feel pushed and pulled in different directions, it can be very difficult to progress forward.

Likewise, the Chariot card often shows up in a tarot reading when the person has an obsession about work, a question about goals, or an issue of over-achieving. In instances when a person is obsessed with climbing the ladder of success - the Charioteer is the one cracking the whip behind the scenes.

Symbolizing great dynamism, potency, movement and power, often when the Chariot is pulled, we are traveling physically, or moving in an emotional direction.

In instances when we want to get somewhere fast, or a quick change of pace is coming - most assuredly the Chariot will appear in the reading.
