Is Leasing a Car a Great Option for You? by Robbert H Cullen

Article published on July 30th 2012 | Self Help

If you have been mulling over this question for quite some time now then the answer is a resounding YES. Leasing is a great option if you want to drive the car of your dreams without having to spend a fortune. If you are a car lover and you find yourself drooling at the latest car models that you see on television and in magazines, then leasing a car is your best option. Through leasing, you will finally get your hands on the car that you have coveted for years and years.

If you save money to buy a car then it will take you years to accomplish that. By the time you save enough money, the car of your dreams is already an old model and the newer model is even more expensive so you need to save more money once again. At this rate, it becomes an endless cycle of coveting and saving, over and over again.

If by chance, you do get to buy your dream car then you will surely feel great. But once you get your hands on your new car then that is when the depreciation begins. The car that you have saved up for years is slowly losing its value right in front of your eyes and there is nothing you can do about it. By the time you decide to sell your old car to buy a new one, its value is a lot lower than its original market value. This can be a painful truth to accept after saving for so many years just to buy that car.

If you choose to lease a car instead of buying then you do not have to worry about the fast depreciation of the car because you did not buy it. When you lease a car, you are only paying for its usage for the time that it is under lease to you. Once that lease ends, you turn over the car back to the leasing company. You no longer have to worry about its depreciated value because it is no longer your responsibility to dispose of the car so you can get a new one. Through leasing, you get to have a new car once the lease term ends. You can satisfy the car lover in you by leasing the latest car model every year or so. This saves you from being stuck with an old car that you are forced to drive because you cannot afford to buy a new one.
