Roger James Hamilton and Why Nature Takes Prominence over Wealth by Corwin Smith

Article published on November 25th 2011 | Self Help

When it comes to the art of wealth creation there is only man who can help you in understanding the true aspects, the true essence as well as the true meaning of wealth creation. The man is Roger James Hamilton. But why there is so much of brouhaha about this man who till a few years back was not at all in the picture of the financial world and least of all in the domain of wealth creation. And that too when there are already some of the finest brains involved in the domain who have the expertise as well as the experience of working within the existing system and till date had been playing an active part in taking care of all the downturns that the economies of various countries have been witnessing so far. But that is precisely the reason behind the rise of Roger. He single handedly demolished all the existing principles as well as the dogmas that have been regulating the flow of wealth in the world. One of the most important things that really bothered this man was the frequent failures of the system in preventing the recessions as well as the depressions in the economies even in some of the most developed of economies in the world.

Roger James Hamilton too had been operating within the confines of the same economic system and had been an ardent follower of the teachings that he had been given from the worldâ€™s best schools and colleges. But ten years of his entrepreneurial efforts resulted in one failure after another and a loss of $ 130 million. Well since the man is positive and a hardcore optimistic he reminisces those days as the most fruitful years of his life. And the losses that he made in those years according to him were the far much more fruitful than what he had spent during his formal education, no matter from where it came from.

After having being through the toughest periods of his life, Roger James Hamilton realized that it was not he who was committing mistakes but rather it was the system that was failing him all along these years. So he had to take an alternate route which till date was invisible or rather non-existent. But when there is fire in the belly and your heart is full of courage then the best thing that you do or rather the ultimate thing that you do is to make your way forward. And that is exactly what he did. He inquired deeper into the subject and realized that without appreciating the role of nature in manâ€™s pursuit towards wealth creation all that would be left is nothing but a lifeless, listless march towards that all elusive wealth. The reason being that man himself is a creature that is not above nature. And all his theories are based on this premise only.
