The Irritating Characters Found in People by Mark Bennett

Article published on February 24th 2012 | Self Help

We have different characters and behavior that make us unique from one another. Even though our characters differ, there is a still small similarity among each character people have. Some of these characters are liked by people while others are hated. Just like the deals of service providers such as Cox Deals.

People who have the character that are hated by us, are the ones we avoid every time. Whenever we see such people, we would try to avoid them or try to hide ourselves from them. The people who have these characters are like black sheep in a group of white ones. They are not liked and are easily avoided.

Let us look into some of such characters.

Angry People â€“ These people are like hot volcanoes. At any time they can burst. They have uncontrollable anger that makes them an avoidable mass among the people. Seriously, such people will have few friends and many of them will try to avoid them. They have no control over their anger and try to lash at anyone irrespective of the place and age.

Sadistic People â€“ These people are the one who are hated the most. They like to create and disturb other people. They find pleasure in the sadness of others. You can see such people in your daily life and you know how they would plan to hurt you. They are mean and will continue to harm you.

Rude People- We find these people every time in our life. They never care if you are old or young and will be rude to you always. For them being rude is in built. It is something that they have learned in their childhood and never forgot to do so in their adult life.

Arrogant People- When we say about arrogant people , we mean people who think they are better than others. It is the most common personality found in the upper class and rich. They feel they are better off and superior than others. They never care to think about otherâ€™s feelings.

Dominating People - These people are the one who like to control others. Mostly such character are found among bosses, husbands and wives. You can say it is a kind of abuse and has a graving effect on the person dominated. But there are people who like to be dominated but that is a choice that differs altogether.

Dishonest People â€“ This is a character which people should shun away. Telling lies is okay, but if you continue to tell lies then it becomes irritating and annoying. This form of dishonesty is found in grownups as well as kids. If you have ever seen your child being dishonest or telling lies, then this is the right time to control your childâ€™s behavior.

Temperamental Peopleâ€“ These kind of characters are found especially in females (Sorry ,ladies it is true). They mean something one moment and afterwards they change their mind. Temperamental peopleâ€™s mood changes very suddenly.

Conceited People - Much like the arrogant people, these people have a high opinion about themselves. Itâ€™s great to have a good opinion of yourself but when it is displayed to others in a manner as to make others feel small it can be very unpleasant.

Unreliable People - Again weâ€™ve all come across people like this at work, at school, at university, in fact every area of life. We also know, very quickly, not to rely on that person for anything. When reliability is not there we tend to think they have other traits related to this such as lazy, disorganized, selfish etc.
