When you browser the site, the browsers can automatically record plenty of information for you, such as the games you have played, the sites you have visited or the applications you have downloaded and even much more. And all this details are known as history.

We all know that with these histories, we can open the visited web pages more quickly, but every thing has two sides, so do these histories. For someone who is skilled at computer, he way easily goes to your computer and discovers what you have done. If you work with a public computer or make use of a computer with someone else, I believe that you might not hope others to know your privacy. Therefore, to prevent someone from attaining personal information that could do injury to you, everyone should clear history.

As a matter of fact, the web history is really a feature of computer systems. If you do not clear computer history for a long time, then over time they will take up a lot of hard disk space. Due to this, you ought to clear history.

Then to solve the issue how to clear history on computer, you could adopt manual method to complete this task.

If you are using Internet Explorer, there are two simple ways for you to clear these histories. The first one is that you are able to use the key combination of Ctrl+Shift+Delete or just choose Delete Browsing History from the Tools menu. You can select the browsing history tracks you would like to remove, after this just click the Delete button. Then the histories will be taken away from your computer. The second way is choosing the Advanced tab and then visiting Security section. Here you can check the tab labeled Empty Temporary Internet Files folder when browser is closed to clear history on computer.

If you are using Mozilla Opera, the steps are following: selecting Options tab in the Tools menu. Next it is Privacy button, Clear Now or Clear button that is listed under History tab.

In fact, manually clear history is really simple. But some index.dat files could keep cache and cookies as well as the Internet history. They are locked and cannot be taken away from your computer by hand. Because of this, if you would like to permanently get rid of all the histories, obvious the most efficient method is to use software, just like Registry Winner, a professional and reliable optimization tool.
