Internet Censorship Creates Buzz Worldwide by Anand Soni

Article published on January 31st 2012 | Seo

Internet censorship may depict considerable impact on sales solution for most of all businesses all over the world. Some research associates are concerned about the language how people use it to spread follow-up for all comments. Now controversy is going on regarding this matter to be solved however, most of the time it is difficult to identify the real issue as the matter is related to all over the world. Sales solutions and Internet have very close relation as most of the businesses run through their market only by Internet and therefore, the impact on business may hamper the reality of Internet restriction.

Unilever CEO and WEF Co-Chair Paul Polman said recently, "It will be foolish for any government to block this platform. Internet and the social media have emerged as a major platform for freedom of speech and free exchange of views, providing a great platform to the people. There has to be free and open Internet platform, but obviously there has to be safety and security for the users."

She said with regard to this issue, "Right to privacy is certainly very important. We need to have checks and balances in place on whether and what data the users want to share. We need to get the right regulations, but not those that are not practical or not of any use."

Popular social networking site Facebook's COO Sheryl Sandberg, during a panel discussion said some more important points as he indicated that it would be very complicated to restrict internet users and their talking. However, people have to be motivated with concerned ideas and it would be like educating concerns.

Sandberg further said, "When we talk about free Internet and restrained Internet, the names like Arab Spring indeed come to the mind and the authoritarian regimes and democratic regimes."

Citigroup chief Vikram Pandit said with regard to this issue, "On the issue of Internet freedom it is related to the right to privacy and security of data, which is certainly very important. The issues like cyber security need to be taken seriously and we need to do a lot better on these fronts."

However, most of the analysts are stern to develop a comprehensive strategy occupy complete arena where they can have unlimited business development. But still censorship of the Internet a very crucial point to achieve it as most of the countries including India want to make it happen.
