The way the Search engine Google used to carry out the search is not same anymore. This search engine and online advertising and marketing giant is pushing hard to come up with more tough rules and regulations for the websites fighting among each other to get better search engine ranking. However, the new mechanism going to be adopted by the Google will be based on same earlier platform. The Google will still search for the keywords in the websites for deciding their rank on their search result pages. It is not the mechanism which is going to be adopted by the Google which is creating the concern. The main cause for worry is the strong rumors that Google will be heavily punishing web sites that will use too much keyword to increase their search engine ranking.

Google does not want to discourage the use of search engine based optimization services. The search engine giant only wants to create a more level playing field. It wants to push websites owners to go for prescribed ways of getting their website ranks improved. The path prescribed by the Google states that the websites should focus more on the content of their online space and the information that they deliver through their Online Business website.

This step was long expected from the Google. It's because there are a host of search engine optimization services offering organization which offer their services at rock bottom prices. These organizations do not have proper human resources, and various other tools and technologies required for optimizing the pages. Still they are able to deliver quality services by resorting and using all black hat SEO (Search engine optimization) tools and techniques. However, Google and various other search engines have tools to find the websites using such techniques. Still, due to some technical issues, only a fractional websites using such black hat techniques used to get caught. To make sure that cheap search engine optimization services offering organization find it tough to survive, the Google is soon going to take a host of other measures.

It will be very hard now for cheap SEO Service India organizations to survive. Only way they can survive is by adopting the White Hat SE Optimization tools and techniques. They have also to give immense importance to the content and information and also make sure they are offering something good to the online visitors. Still it will be very tough for them to maintain their existence in this tough SEO Services regime. If they falter at any point, they have to pay heavily for that. Their reputation will get spoilt and the Google will take tougher action on them. So choose ethical Based SEO Firm in India.
