Kobe has a sharp and acute sense of the hands. Since his very young age, dribble has been a skill he is proud of. As he was not tall when he was a junior school student, he began his particular training in the skills on hand like dribbling at back or cross dribbling. Before his entering into the NBA, he has already learnt quite well in the slam dunk and rebounding. His statistics have risen to a higher grade after the training in the jump shot and three point shot. Every time when it comes the sports competition season, he would pay more attention to the training of hands on sense and variation. When he is dribbling, he would always try to master the initiative right through the control of the tempo. For many times he has done successfully in the distraction of the defenders' attention through long time's holding and dribbling the ball. The defenders would lose their tempo in the court as Kobe has the ability to deal with the space between himself and the defenders. He possesses the ability to have a breakthrough among all the defenders and make a shot surprisingly. He can do all the series of movements in a fluent and natural way. What is more, his movements of eyesight as well will stimulate the rivals' nerve. And his attack has been done in the very moment when the rivals have a relax in spirit.

He began to learn to make a compromise. He began to place reliance to his teammates. And the management layer had introduced a big man in to support him. Now he has an excellent comrade, with whom he could have a better performance in the court. And his team has taken on an entirely new look since then. He himself has got several MVP. He has become the man who is next to the god of basketball. The critics now have changed the style and bestowed to him the praise in a momentum as the waves. But the young man has come to his 33 years old. He would like to break out all his energy and to catch up the god in the basketball. He failed. But he is not the irritate teen as before. He keeps on practising in his own training room. He knows quite well that time is little for him. He wants to exploit the remaining year to make the most splendid presentation to the folks. And he shows no interest to the criticism. Kobe has given out his mature charm since his entering into the independent year.

The ball was going to be casted. All the audiences on the stand were excited. When Kobe got the ball, he seemed to have sensed a hint of cold. It should be a shot he had been used to for long. For many years, he had been running and practising on the basketball court. The muscles on him have a well reflection of his skillfulness of the act. It was an act he could done quite well even he had closed his eyes. However, time was fleeting. And Stockton was staring at him with a rather serious eye. He dribbled consciously. Time was limit.

Kobe had the access to the NBA when he was 17 years old. He was a boy of great aspiration and passion then. But for the folks, he was just a kid. No one has ever thought that this boy could create a wide and vast zone in the league. And that was why he could be sold by the Hornets randomly. Now let us have a look at his performance in the NBA. He used two years to have an accumulation of abilities and skills. And glories and honors came one after another then. And the folks are able to have an appreciation of the marvellous performance of his and Shark. And he seemed to have a touch of the face of the god and have a feel of his breath. He had a stronger and stronger feeling that the ok assembly was a fetter to him. So he began his individual expenditure. The court keeps on presenting his legendary figure. He can always refresh the folks' eyesight. His legend has given birth to the Kobe shoes as well.
