All the outstanding bouncing and dunking will come into our mind in the discussion of Kobe Bryant. And the series of Kobe shoes will surface out of water if we are about to have a check of the outfit he has equipped. To have a general and brief recall of the scenes, we will notice that the passion for the basketball has contributed a huge part to his sensation. To speak in a general way, the cultivation of passion is very weighty in one's life. Passion is the greatest wealth in the globe. If one has been aiming at the fostering of passion, there will be no place for the expansion of prejudice and laziness. Thus what is passion? Passion is a passionate affection for the work, study and life. It is an optimistic state of mettle. The renowned author Emerson once said that without passion nothing will be fulfilled. If an individual is inclined to devote all the energy and heart to the career, passion will be the crucial element in the dedication. The fostering of passion will help one retain a hearty and energetic feeling or attitude to life.

It is said that passion has dominated about 95 percent in the achievement in the marketing while the knowledge about the merchandise has the rate of merely 5 percent. If an individual does not have the grand passion for the job he or she has been engaging, how could he or she win the heart of the customers. It is as well said that passion is the prime part for the proceeding of marketing. When the passion has been used up, that will indicate the end of the person's career. Marketing and passion are like two brothers that can not be parted. And that should owe to its nature. We can learn from our individual experience that we will be on alert if the salesperson has kept on a persistent marketing. For this reason, only when the salesperson has fully exploited the trust and sympathy in consumers by means of passion, can he or she achieve the goal.

The precedent of making a hit in the very beginning has never occurred in the sphere of marketing. Setbacks and failures will come one after another to the individual who has picked up th job for the first time. Only after long time's amassing can the salesperson master the skill and make a hit. For the passionless persons, they will be threatened to give up their career half way. Only the person who has incessant passion will be able to get to the ultimate goal. The person who engages in marketing needs to master the knack of communicating with the clients sincerely. As a result, the salesperson should learn to spread the passion to the consumers. Passion will give rise enthusiasm and confidence. And any person could not find an excuse to resist such kind of enthusiasm.

And the basketball titan, Kobe has made full use of his passion for the basketball to create the forbidden zone of god. Passion has made him a legend. Passion is the method he used to make a self promotion. He has touched and shocked all of us. Let us put on the Kobe shoes to follow his splendid deed.
