Fashionable Keychains

Keychains make great promotional items for various kinds of companies. Keychains can be either engraved key chains or printed keychains. Laser engraved keychains are very sturdy and durable. Laser engraved keychains are long lasting and better than the printed ones.

Wholesale keychains that are printed tend to fade and chip over a period of time. The printed keychains are available in different colors. If you would like to have a logo on the printed keychain, you will be charged a certain amount. The printed keychains are also available in the form of LED flashlight keychains as well.

The wholesale keychains are used by businesses and persons for a variety of events such as trade shows, conferences, parties, reunions, etc. Mini flashlights are useful as part of keychains due to their small size.

Types of Keychains

Two types of bulbs are usually used in the keychains. These are light emitting diodes (LED) and filament bulbs. LEDs are the more popular ones that are used by most people. They are brighter, long-lasting and are available in a range of colors such as red, blue, green, etc. The button cells that are used to power LEDs are much smaller than those used for filament bulbs, and they can also be made smaller and flatter than the filament bulbs.

The batteries for LED devices are in the form of flat silver discs, and this is the reason why it is called button batteries. The LED keychains are made of anodized aluminum as well as durable plastic in a variety of shapes and colors also.
