Article published on March 10th 2012 | Shopping

Think about promotion and all possible promotional gifts come to mind. Cheap promotional pens however top the list of popular trade show giveaways for some of the most obvious reasons. Everyone needs a pen and if it's good, they love to keep it with them all the time. These low cost promotional gifts may seem insignificant but have the potential to promote your business and keep it alive in the minds of people.

If pens are so useful and effective in brand advertising, it is obvious that your competitors are handing out many pens. The pen you gift therefore should stand out and make an impression. Pay attention to its style and see that it has impressive features so that it makes its way to people's desks at work. If you are looking for something thatâ€™s budget-friendly, go for online promotional pens. There are a number of websites that sell these pens at wholesale rates in bulk quantities.

When choosing cheap promotional pens, do not underestimate the quality of good old plastic pens. There are quite a few European makers that make excellent plastic pens that are both chic and functional. These pens are a great choice for promoting your brand at conferences, trade shows, and promotional campaigns. Types of pens you may consider include key ring pens, USB pens, camera pens, torch pens, and recording pens.

No matter which pen you choose, it is important that you make quality your top priority. After all, it will take only a second for customers to throw away a pen they don't like, but that will speak volumes of what they feel about your brand. An established company will never want to associate itself with something that's not up to the mark. So, make sure that you stay away from substandard stuff that will do more harm to your business than good.
