Few things can catch a woman's attention more than quality jewelry. It's a delight to see a woman's eyes light up when given a beautiful and sparkling engagement ring. When an unmarried woman wears an engagement ring, she is most probably engaged to the man of her dreams.

The first engagement ring was worn by Mary of Burgundy when she was betrothed to the Archduke Maximilian of Austria. Prior to the 1900s, a common betrothal gift for the bride-to-be was the sewing thimble. It was only towards the end of the 19th century when engagement rings became standard betrothal gifts. Diamond engagement rings became popular in the 1930s. Today, most American women wear diamond rings to show they're engaged.

In North America, the engagement ring is worn on the ring finger of the left hand. This finger is said to have the vein that runs directly to the heart. The placement of the engagement ring on the fingers depends largely on the culture and tradition of the couple. After the wedding ceremony, some women wear both their wedding and engagement rings, or just the wedding ring. Aside from the usual engagement ring, couples also buy promise rings to represent loyalty to each other.

The price of an engagement ring depends on the materials used, design, and the value of the gemstone. Diamonds are perhaps the most popular gemstones for engagement rings. Other gemstones used for engagement rings are sapphires, emeralds and rubies. Gemstones are chosen based on family tradition, couple's preference, cost and birth month of the recipient.

If the couple decides to hold their wedding in The Woodlands, there are jewelry stores in The Woodlands that have several choices for engagement and wedding rings. Engagement rings come in different styles. Those with a single diamond are called solitaire rings. A trinity or trilogy ring has three diamonds set horizontally with the diamond in the center larger than the other two.
