All of us know how important part Christmas has become in our lives. Christmas is no more just a celebration it has become more of a family time. Most of us wait for the Christmas as this is the only time when all of our family members are on vacation. Starting from the kids to adults everyone looks it as a time to enjoy each others. Everyone actively takes part in the Christmas decoration and make it look like family affair.

I would like to share an experience that I came across recently, I am not a Christian and thus I had only been celebrating Christmas casually but never had been an active part of such celebration before. One of my friend invited me to his home town for the Christmas celebration and I could not say no as I had been very close to him and I was already on holidays as it was Christmas. I reached Ponda on the 24th of December and once I reached there I realized how beautiful a city can get with the Christmas. For all of you who donâ€™t know what Ponda is, it is a small town in Goa. Once I reached there I was welcomed by the family members of my friends. Once we reached there all of them jumped him with gifts, but my friends I were not carrying anything. I asked my friends will he not give any Christmas gift. He just asked me to be patient, on the morning of 25th December some one carrying a huge bookie of flowers and other stuff reached his house, my friendâ€™s family were all full with joy.

My friend has ordered online gifts for every one in the family. Christmas flowers for every one and a big chocolate cake for the family and some chocolates for the childrenâ€™s. His father had no limits to joy when he saw a big bottle of Christmas champagne which has his fathers name on it. Once every one was settled down I asked him how did he do all this and when did he do it. He showed me the website FNP, and it was a remarkable one. It looked like an online florist which had almost all the flowers that one could think of. It even has option to send Christmas gift to India and other countries, and not only for Christmas but it had arrangement for many more occasions. So now I realized how world has become fast and online, so if you want to celebrate any occasion you donâ€™t have to go for florist just check FNP and I am sure it will be more than you can ask for.
