With the obvious exception of skiers and snowboarders, winter is the time of year, most extreme sports enthusiasts hate the most, especially in the Germany. Have you ever tried to skate on the ice, ride a bicycle in a snowstorm or ice-cold water surfing? It's not funny.

A bonus of winter extreme sports enthusiasts, it's Christmas, at least to get something they really appreciate. But if, like most, you do not know the bearings of your attacks, or just drop their clothes dry, it's probably best to play it safe and go for something that will appreciate - the operation of the camera.

A walk in the air over water, snow or dirt becomes an activity increasingly widespread and popular among extreme sports enthusiasts and advances in camera technology has made HD Helmkamera to the "extreme gift" the ideal.

There are a number of cameras on the market and can be difficult to choose between them, but it's safe to say that there are three brands you should consider first:

GoPro - GoPro HD is one of the most sought after and popular cameras on the market. It may be a larger end of the spectrum of the camera, but what it lacks in its discretion, more than compensates for the quality.

Operation - the HD Drift is the latest device operating range and is ideal for mounting on the side of the helmet because of its size and streamlined design. If you want to treat someone that rolls with a full face helmet, so this could be the camera for them. If you want some good additional points on Christmas Day, then throw in a suction cup.

Contour - With so many great family products Contour, contourhd, contour roam, contour GPS, contour plus, contour hd, contour actionkamera, contour kamera. it is difficult to highlight just one, so here are two. The latest model of the Contour Contour is a highly anticipated Roam, a smooth bullet camera has a clear one-step recording function that allows you to film a one-time switch.

Another interesting product of the series Contour Contour is a GPS Video Kamera that monitors the exact location of that photo or video took place. This is a great camera for those who travel long distances, such as mountain bikers, skiers or snowboarders.

Bullet cameras are small, rugged and water resistant and designed to fit in the driver's helmet, body, frame or board safely. There are a variety of packages available depending on the session preferences and style, so be sure to look at this assembly that would be best for the person you are buying based on what and how they move.
