Who is not willing to accept any gifts? Everybody is willing to accept gifts and especially the gifts given by their children, spouses, friends, relatives and colleagues.

Of course, giving gifts cannot be considered as simply a modern culture and it had started centuries back. Years back in order to appreciate any person or honor him for having acclaimed certain glories; it was the custom to offer gifts in the form of â€œolive leavesâ€•.

Slowly the tradition changed a lot and nowadays gifts occupy the minds of the people in different forms and varieties. Sending gifts to India is one among the several ways and avenues by which a reasonable income is gained by exporters and traders especially from USA and Canada.

It is a known fact that professionals from Asian countries like India occupy many key positions in USA, Canada and Britain and the system of sending flowers to India started some decades back by the Non resident Indians living in those countries to their relatives, friends and family members residing in India.

Gifts can be in any form and there cannot be any strict rules in sending the gifts and of course, it depends upon the mental attitude of the person who is offering the gifts.

Gifts are given during birth day ceremonies, marriage functions, sports day celebrations conducted in colleges, schools and Universities. In fact gifts represent â€œsymbolsâ€• for recognition of the services by individuals or others.

The pleasure and happiness a person derives at the time of receiving any gifts or prizes in honor of any exemplary services offered by him cannot be expressed in any number of words.

The psychologists say that everybody wants to get recognized and once this innermost desire in each person is satisfied, he feels honored and enjoys happiness.

Gifts can be in the form of flowers, watches, mobile phones, cameras, televisions, soft toys, kitchen appliances, shirts, dresses, soft toys, books or can be mere gift vouchers.

The tradition of offering bouquets to the guests started years back and in fact offering flowers is considered to be one among the different modes of exchanging pleasant thoughts and emotions.

Flowers convey lot of meanings and in fact, knowing the sentiments of the people florists take pains to prepare the bouquets made out of different kinds of flowers especially orange rose, pink rose or white rose for sending flowers to India.

Sending gifts to India can be made a memorable occasion by choosing the right kind of shops available in the city.
