Genesis Bronze Figurines - an Unforgettable Art Work by Julia Roger

Article published on July 14th 2012 | Shopping

Bronze figurines have been used since ages and are still in wide demand in the world markets. Genesis is a name, which has originated in Ireland and is now a popular brand of bronze figurines. Handcrafted with perfection and attention to intrinsic details these figurines are perfect to be kept as collectibles or can even be given as memorable gifts. Genesis Bronze Figurines cannot be reproduced through means of the traditional wax method of hot casting. Each of the pieces has its own beauty and charm, which cannot be defined in words. Pulverized bronze metal and barium sulfate are poured into a mold and put under pound of pressure, which creates a catalytic reaction that fuses the bronze metal powder together.

All the figurines reflect the rich mythology and history of Ireland. Inspired by Irish legends and culture they stand to be unique and unexplainable. Flawless in design and available in different forms and sizes they would definitely add to the value of the place wherever they are placed. Decorative and elegant they retain their luster and do not require any maintenance. If you are planning to gift something different to your known ones then there will not be any better gift than these beautiful bronze sculptures. From animals, Celtic spirits, children, traditional, fine art to different occasions you would find sculptures based on your need and budget.

Be it birthday, wedding, anniversary, engagement or a retirement party, these figurines make an ideal gift and would never let you down. Art lovers all over the world search for superior Rosenthal Thomas to expand their personal collection. Each of the design stands different from the other and is a true artistic piece in itself. As bronze can withstand exposure to natural elements better than other materials therefore they are widely used in creating figurines. Highly subjective, these sculptures have an attractive look and may be assessed according to their configuration and molding. If you are interested in unique work, then opting for a custom-built bronze sculpture is an alternative. Completely durable and pioneered to perfection they can be kept both indoors as well as outdoors.
