Traditionally we go to the retail store, pick the greeting card, and then go to the Courier Company and then courier to the relatives. Now, the problem I am talking about is, you would need at least 3-4 days to deliver the greeting card for Christmas and if it is an international destination it may be a week. On top of all this, you need to make sure you do not go to the courier office on Sunday as they may be closed. Therefore, you need to take a half day from work and then send the greeting.
