How to Choose an Appropriate Sized LCD TV by Abhi

Article published on February 27th 2012 | Shopping

LCD TVs come in an extensive range of sizes from 19-inch to 60-inch. Picking the apt LCD screen size can be a tiring exercise.

Whenever youâ€™re looking to buy a LCD TV, itâ€™s predictable that the larger displays will grab your attention first. When two LCDs are placed side by side, who would like a 40-inch whilst thereâ€™s a 60-inch soaring over it? Itâ€™s a normal tendency to opt for a great looking display. But most of the time people are puzzled about how big the LCD screen should precisely be?

So, how do you elect the appropriate LCD display size?

Selection of a LCD TV screen size mostly depends on various aspects like â€“

1. Size of the room â€“ Start by measuring the area of the room where the LCD will be placed. The dimensions are vital factors while determining the LCD screen size. LCD TV is heavy, bulky and fragile. To save yourself the hassle, measure twice. You wouldnâ€™t want to take it back to the store simply because of the variation in size. You can also try by using card sheets or fold a bed sheet to the desired size and paste it to the wall, (simply to gain an idea of how the LCD TV will look on your wall).

2. Viewing Distance â€“ Determine the distance between the observer and the LCD TV. There are many ways to decide on the acceptable distance between you and the LCD screen. This isnâ€™t a hard and fast rule, but usually the distance between your sitting arrangement & your television should be at least three times the TVâ€™s diagonal screen size. For example, if youâ€™ve a 40in LCD TV, donâ€™t more than 120in away. Small to mid-sized screens can be viewed conveniently from a range of 10-15ft. While larger displays require approx. 15-20ft distance for the ultimate viewing experience.While you buy LCD online you should be more cautious about these things.

3. Viewing Angle â€“ Also consider the angle from where you will be watching the TV. You wouldnâ€™t want to crane your neck or exhaust your eyes while watching the action on screen. For optimal viewing experience, the LCD screen should be placed in such a way that it directly faces the site from where you'll most frequently be watching the TV.

4. Screen height â€“ While watching your favorite program you wouldnâ€™t want to constantly look slightly up or down, would you? So while placing it, set it at a height and align the screen with your like of vision/sitting arrangement. Sitting in your favorite spot with the TV screen in front of you, you should be able to see the on-screen action without any strain on your eyes or neck.

Tip - Small 15 to 19-inch screens are most suitable for the kitchen or office use. Mid range 26 to 37-inch screens serve well for the bedrooms or small living rooms. While 40 inches or larger is an excellent choice for most homes.

So, while deciding on the LCD screen size, use these subsequent tips to help you choose an appropriate sized LCD TV screen.
