Immortalise loved ones with memorial diamonds by Blossom Dana

Article published on January 23rd 2012 | Shopping

The loss of a loved one creates a space in our lives which no one and nothing can fill. No amount of consolation or condolences can make up for the loss. We always crave for the presence of that special person especially when we are low and need their support and love. Although it is not possible to bring back the departed, it is always possible to treasure their memories in the form of cremation diamonds which can always be kept close to the heart in the memory of those whose presence we still crave.

Cremation Diamond is similar to naturally mined diamonds in appearance, structure and properties. The only difference is that they are more precious above their monetary value due to their emotional significance. Memorial diamonds are produced in the laboratories by application of heat and pressure to carbon in an atmosphere similar to the one in which the natural process takes place . it is a well known fact that natural diamonds are pure forms of carbon element. Similarly cremation diamonds are also essentially carbon, with the only difference that some of the carbon is derived from the cremation ashes of the loved one. This is the most beautiful way to immortalise someone forever. Cremation diamonds are a befitting tribute to the ones who were an invaluable asset when alive.

These valuable diamonds act as constant reminders of the deceased and act as a moral support in the time of need. These memorials with time become representatives of the ones whose mortal remains they are formed from. Cremation diamonds are made not only from human cremation ash but also from pet ash as attribute to the selfless, silent companions. Animal cremation ash can from diamonds by a procedure similar to the one used for human ash.

Memorial diamonds can be incorporated into jewellery as in pendants and rings. Worn as a pendant , these diamonds place the memories of the lost loved ones close to the heart and remind one of their constant presence and support .Psychological studies have proved that these memorials help the holder in coping up with the loss . It also confirms the presence of the loved ones at the time of need. Thus , a cremation diamond is much more than a mere passive tribute. It is the ray of hope in the life of those who have suffered the loss. A hope and an assurance that a part of the departed soul is still with them and shall accompany them till eternity.

These diamonds apart from being embedded in gold, silver or platinum for making keepsake jewellery can also be displayed in the house as a memorial in beautiful diamond cases made of silver, platinum, ivory or even carved wood. These become a family heritage for generations to come and consolidate the family bond. These memorials ensure that the lost ones though departed in physical form are constantly kept alive in conversations and memories.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/shopping-articles/immortalise-loved-ones-with-memorial-diamonds.htm - Article Side

Blossom Dana - About Author:
The above description describes about a Cremation Diamonds.These are an invaluable tribute to the loved ones and immortalise them. a Memorial Diamonds are a constant reminder of the presence of the departed whose memories are kept alive in such a beautiful manner.

Article Keywords:
memorial diamonds, cremation diamonds, cremation diamond, memorial diamond, ashes diamonds, ashes diamond, ashes pendants, cremation pendants, cremation memorial, memorial pendant, cremation pendant, ashes pendant, ashes jewellery, memorial jewellery, pet

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!