Jewelry can also be very meaningful and add a personal touch to your style. This article will discuss some of the different trends in jewelry.

One of the pieces of jewelry that is always in style is a white gold cross pendant. This is a very simple piece of a white gold chain with a cross charm. You can get very elaborate crosses or very simple crosses. Either way, this is a classic piece that is great to have. You can wear a white gold cross pendant for casual days when you are in a t-shirt and jeans, or you can wear it when you are getting dressed up for a special event. It is a very versatile piece that is good to have in your jewelry box.

Another great piece is a charm bracelet. These are reminiscent of the macrame friendship bracelets you likely exchanged with your best friends when you were young. Like friendship bracelets, these allow you to show your friends that you care about them a great deal. You can personalize the charm bracelet with different charms that are meaningful and reflect the person's hobbies and interest. These can be added to over the years.

Something that has become very popular in jewelry is the cocktail ring. These are usually large rings that make a statement and add interest to your outfit. Generally you would not wear it on an everyday basis but would wear it when you are getting ready to go out dancing or for another special occasion. These are available in many different styles and can be a great way to add personality to your outfit.

Bangles are types of bracelets that are a great way to dress up an outfit as well. You can wear bangles with a plain blouse or dress and suddenly you have an exciting look. Bangles are often stacked up with different colors and styles and create a very unique look. These can be worn with just a few on the wrist for work or with many when you are going out.

Statement necklaces are a great way to dress up a plain shirt or dress as well. There are lots of necklaces out there with large stones and pendants that allow you to add interest to any outfit. By pairing statement pieces with plain shirts you can have a wardrobe with a lot of variety. This is a style that is great for a date night or can be very appropriate for work as well.

There are lots of different jewelry options out there and some are classic styles like white gold cross pendants while others are trendier. It is good to have a mix of classic and trendy so you have everyday pieces as well as pieces for dressy occasions.
