Make the Very Most of Your iPhone 4S by Christy

If you have an iPhone 4S, then you have an incredibly powerful piece of technology, that is also equally innovative and transformative in the way that you will use it to accomplish hundreds of tasks more quickly and more easily than you would have before. The iPhone 4S is the latest iPhone meaning that it has all the features of those before it â€“ GPS, compass, high speed always-on internet connectivity, highly powerful specs (in terms of CPU and RAM etc), impressive design, excellent software and the amazing app store; but also many more such as the highly impressive 'retina' display and the beautiful glass casing.

Some people however don't take full advantage of this. They pay a lot of money for the 'status' of owning an iPhone 4s, and for the way it looks and feels, and yet they never really use it to its fullest â€“ instead using it to just browse the web and maybe read the news. If you are only going to surf the web then really you may as well have bought something much cheaper and saved yourself the money â€“ your iPhone deserves to be used for more than just making and taking calls.

But perhaps you simply didn't know what your phone was capable of? When there are so many features it can understandably be hard to get acquainted with all of them. Here then are a few ways you can start getting more from your iPhone right now.

Use iCloud: iCloud is a service that comes with your iPhone 4S and which allows you to save yourself a lot of money while at the same enjoying a lot more connectivity and even back up. What iCloud does in short is to let you store your files on a server and then access them via 'the cloud' from any device. In short then, your apps are no longer on your phone, but instead exist online for you to use from any location. It means you have a lot more space, and at the same time it means you never get caught without your files (and goodbye to irritating 'syncing').

Get High Def Software: Your iPhone 4S has something called a 'retina' screen, and that's largely what puts it above the other iPhones before it. This screen is so high definition, that the human eye wouldn't be able to detect the difference if it went much higher. It is not quite, but almost the same resolution as our biology.

However in order to make the most of that you need apps that take advantage of that high definition and that contain that kind of crisp definition in their graphics. There are a few games that have this HD display, and a few other apps. You should download a few of them as a showcase.

Read App Reviews: There are plenty of free websites that review the latest iPhone apps. It's worth reading these so that you can invest in those apps that you think will benefit you most. Maybe you'd like a running app to track your jogging progress? Or maybe your iPhone could be put to good use as a remote mouse for your laptop?
