Article published on December 1st 2011 | Shopping

Family and friends are an integral and important part of our life and from keeping us grounded when life throws a curve to sharing in the laughter and love of magic moments, their presence is always there. Losing a loved one takes away the physical presence but a patent pending Millenium cremation pendant has given those left behind a unique way to honor a loved one. The accessory lets family and friends have a tribute to be held close as well as be a trendy and versatile display for a favorite bead charm.

Millenium cremation jewelry explained

The Millenium cremation pendant is crafted of stainless steel and has a flat top bail and a cylindrical shaped main pendant. The interior of the main pendant is hollow and will hold a tribute of personal choosing. Additionally, each Millenium pendant will hold bead charms from most major bead manufacturers and the length of the pendant and subsequent number of beads can be increased by adding additional extensions to the bottom of the Millenium. A keeper screws into the bottom most extension to secure the beads onto the pendant.

Millenium versatility

The flexability of the Millenium cremation pendant design means that several pendants are available for the price of one! The Millenium can be worn with simply the main body and a bead of personal choosing or with additional extensions and several beads at one time. Beads can be mixed and matched and changed on a whim and the stainless steel Millenium pendant is available plated in silver, gold, rose gold, blue or black finishes.

The Millenium cremation pendant has a wide range of flexibility with:

Â· The ability to add or remove extensions to create different lengths

Â· Wear with a wide assortment of beads that can be mixed and matched

Â· Several different finishes plated over sterling silver

The loss of those closest to us causes heartache and grief and learning to move forward to the next chapter is an important part of the healing process. Millenium cremation pendants may ease the grief by holding a tribute of personal choosing inside the keepsake. This modern accessory also gives the wearer a variety of options to display personal style as it holds bead charms from most major bead manufacturers. Versatile to wear and filled with a personal tribute, the Millenium cremation pendant is an ideal way to keep them close.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/shopping-articles/millenium-cremation-pendant-love-and-elegance-combined.htm - Article Side

Rajesh - About Author:

Click a here to learn more about the Millenium cremation pendant and a designer cremation jewelry. Visit a www.evrmemories.com to learn more about the Millenium pendant and to find helpful tips and resources for remembering loved ones that have passed.

Article Keywords:
designer cremation jewelry, Cremation Jewelry, Custom Cremation urns, Pet Cremation Urns

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!