When you give a cool gift to your buddy, the element of surprise and joy just doubles your own. When we give gifts without an ulterior motive, we reemphasize the inherent goodness in mankind. We learn to be generous and giving and teach others also to be generous. The gifts we give must become part of the cherished memories of the receiver. The selection of the cool gift also must have an element of our personality in it, so that the receiver is reminded of us each time he uses it.
