All terrain vehicles (ATV) can be used for variety of purposes including farming. There are many types of equipment that can be attached to ATVs such as seed and fertilizers spreaders. For buying ATV accessories the internet has many stores that make it easy for customers to shop online. The use of ATVs for farming has increased and this has lead to the designing of motorized farm equipment for various farming tasks.

ATVs were originally used for recreational activities but advances in technology have lead to evolution of these highly adaptable vehicles for activities like lawn mowing, plowing, and pulling different machines for agricultural activities. This is due to the ability of ATVs to be used in areas where ordinary pickup trucks and even tractors couldnâ€™t. Some unconventional farming techniques calls for the use of ATVs to do tasks which trucks and tractors are too bulky for. Their ability to pull weights that horses cannot has also endeared ATVs to many farmers. For these reasons there has been an increased demand for ATV accessories for different tasks on the farm.

ATV accessories enable a simple ATV to perform multiple functions simply by changing the parts needed for each task. One of the most common applications of ATVs for farming is in spreading seeds, lime and fertilizers. There are many types of spreaders that are designed for use with ATVs and they enable the farmer to do the spreading of these faster and evenly over a piece of land with minimal effort. Another application for ATVs is in cutting of grass when a lawn mower is attached to it and this is popular with non farmers who have vast lawns.

ATVs are increasingly being used by landscapers mainly because they can be used all year round even in the roughest weather conditions such as heavy snow and mud. ATV accessories for this purpose can be purchased from different stores and their attachments and use is simple since they come with user manuals. ATVs can be used to plant deer plots and a variety of seed broadcast spreaders can be attached for planting purposes.

Snow plowing machines can be used with ATVs for clearing snow from driveways and roads. Stores selling ATV accessories have different types of hardware for various functions and they make it easy for customers to choose the right type of equipment for each task. With advances in farming techniques the use of ATVs is bound to increase due to their huge potential to make farm chores easy and because they are much more pocket friendly for farmers than trucks and tractors.
