Anniversary always reminds you of the special day when both of you promised to share each otherâ€™s life, â€œin sickness and in healthâ€•. But as time consumes the passion and warmth of the relation, both o you get into quarrels with each other over silly matters and blaming each other for small reasons. If this sounds similar to your life story, then take a step to make some changes in your life on this coming anniversary.

Options for anniversary gifts are plenty, like taking her to a movie, buying her some jewelry, sending her flowers and chocolates at her office address and so on. But if you really want to polish the rust out and bring back the charm and energy in your relationship, plan something unusual and out of the box.

Plan innovative, not expensive

Taking a trip to an exotic location works like magic to mend any loosening relation, but it also affects your bank balance severely. So why not try to camp at the backyard of your house? Doesnâ€™t it sound crazy? Well, this is sure to bring back the joy of college days in your life. Leave your better half out of this planning, as this should remain a complete surprise to her.

Check the stores for some marshmallows and hotdogs, and the special anniversary gifts could be â€œPersonalised Champagne and Chocolatesâ€•, which you will relish together for fire. Take a skillet to start the fire in, put all these into your old backpack, which you might find in your basement storage. Get the romantic music ready to play in background and the stage is set to play.

Do not ask your wife to come early or be ready for an outing if she is not in a good mood, just wait until she is back home from work and refreshed. The idea of camping at the backyard might sound funny and unrealistic to her, but take her slowly to the place. She is sure to jump in joy after watching the arrangements and your efforts behind it.

Spending anniversaries in a regular manner like watching movies or going out for dinner sometimes does not work, as the pressure of present modern lifestyle is too hectic and often you feel drained out or too lazy to plan something unusual. But as they say â€œvariety is the spice of lifeâ€•, adding that spice in right amount is the formula for a long lasting, happy and contented relation.
