Ever since man started to live in a society, adorning himself with clothes and accessories has been a practise and has forever held the charm of the Homo sapiens race. This quality to adorn ourselves with accessories and clothes is unique to us. As we have evolved over the years our ways of dressing and accessorising we have changed as well. Home woven clothes gave way to machine made or handloom made cloth, and grass and natural made colours have given way to precious metals, stones and artificial and chemical colours. We have made some accessories which while giving us a protection factor also add to our look and make us feel more confident. Sunglasses are such an fashion accessory. From working with a simple glass to save eyes from harmful UV rays they have now developed into one of the most sought after accessory.

Designer Sunglasses are now doing rounds of fashion ramps across the world. Big celebrities, fashion houses and brands are launching their own line of sunglasses along with other lines of clothing, accessory and perfumes. The revered status of the sunglasses can be owed to their endorsement some famous celebrities likes Audrey Hepburn, Marilyn Monrow, Priyanka Chopra, Katrina Kaif and lady GaGa to name a few. Famous people, who belong to the aspiration group for the common people, have given them a hope to look like them and be associated with them.

Designer Sunglasses have a feel good factor for the person who buys them. Brand value associated with them infuses a level of confidence into the person who wears them. The quality and brand recognition makes designer sunglasses an attractive option for the customer to buy. Sunglasses are now accessories that no fashion enthusiast can do without.
