A great way to bring back those memories is to give a special jewelry gift to your friend that will show her how much you care.

One type of jewelry that many women will love is a white gold cross pendant. This is a great gift for any of your friends of Christian faith. The great thing about a white gold cross pendant is that it is a very simple piece. It can be worn for every day with just a casual t-shirt or it can be worn when you are getting dressed up to go out. This is a very versatile piece that many women would love to have.

A great way to get a different version of macrame friendship bracelets for your friends is to get a charm bracelet. You could get one for yourself and all of the women in your close group of friends. You will be able to pick out charms that are unique to each one of your friends. There are charms available for sports teams, hobbies, and much more. The wonderful thing about this gift is that you can continue to give charms in the years to come. You and your friends will have fun getting each other different charms that reflect your personalities.

Friendship bracelets can also be represented with other types of bracelets like ones with a special message engraved. You can get a very simple but beautiful bracelet with an engraved message about your friendship. This will be a very meaningful gift that your friend is sure to appreciate.

There are lots of other fun ideas for jewelry that you can give as a gift. Cocktail rings are very popular and are a great way to make a dramatic statement. You often think of rings as a piece of jewelry that you would wear everyday but cocktail rings are great accessories for when you are dressing up and need an extra piece of jewelry to add a special touch. You can give these to your friends in different colors and styles to represent your friendship.

Bangle bracelets are also very popular right now. Bangles are often worn stacked with several per wrist. These can be combined in different colors and styles and are great accessories for many occasions. This is a great gift for your friends as well because they can be put together in many different combinations. They may be able to combine them with bracelets that they already have.

There are so many great options for jewelry gifts for your friends and you can pick out pieces that are unique to each of your friends. This allows you to give a personal gift that they will have for many years.
