Bail Bond Process Simplified by Gauri Hadden

Article published on January 16th 2012 | Society

A bail bond is the legal document that is directly put forth to the court in order to secure the instant release of a suspect who was arrested. It is a perfect instrument that is often exercised to make sure the appearance of the suspect at all required court hearings. When it comes to the fast release of your loved ones, bail bond is supposed to be the best suitable option for you. It is both inexpensive as well as efficient enough to get the defendant out instantly. Whenever you need fast release from the custody, a professional bail bond agent is required for an urgent action.

In practical senses, a bail bond is the best option to gain freedom and it is also seen as an opportunity to hire a lawyer for the case. Bail bond is an amount which is set by the court authorities following the arrest of a suspect. A friend or a family member can contact a bail bond agency in order to arrange for the fast posting of the bail bond and free the suspect. The family member or friend has to guarantee that the suspect/defendant will appear at all the court hearings without fail. They are also known as the indemnitor or co-signer. On this promise they can complete the Bail Paperwork and pay the premium amount, which is typically a percentage of the bond amount.

By signing the paper, the co-signer is guaranteeing that the defendant will pay the full amount of the bond if the defendant fails to appear in court on the pre-defined hearing date. Typically, collateral is taken from the co-signer in order to secure the guarantee. Here, collateral is the value that is pledged to secure the bail bond. It includes cash, asset, moveable or immovable property, jewelry, etc. Upon complete decision of the suspectâ€™s case and payment of all premiums in full, the collateral (cash, asset) is returned to the co-signer.

Today, it is supposed to be the easiest and fastest method to take the defendant out of the jail and allow him/her to hire an experienced bail bond agent. Legal agencies are also offering comprehensive services to the people so that they have the time to hire a lawyer to handle the case in an efficient manner. They offer their flexible set of services including flexible Bail Bond Payment Options: local personal checks, credit terms and 24-hr fast jail release.

In essence, the bail bond process has been simplified by the experienced agencies to secure easy release.
