Article published on April 25th 2012 | Software

Panasonic HDC-TM700K 1080/60p is the advanced camcorder came out in 2010 with 3MOS, 35mm wide-angle lens and 12x optical zoom. What's more, Its flash Memory is as large as 32GB. The letter K means black in Japanese, and sometimes the model is referred as HDC-TM700. Panasonic HDC-TM700K has perfect quality even though in low-light conditions, but it can't do anything when you put its file to Final Cut Express/Final Cut Pro to have editing.

As we know, the Final Cut Express/Final Cut Pro is a non-linear video editing application which is designed for editing of digital video as well as high-definition video, like MOV, DV, HDV, MPGE4 and so on. Thus, when you want to edit Panasonic HDC-TM700K 1080/60p MTS file with Final Cut Express/Final Cut Pro, you must convert Panasonic HDC-TM700K to Final Cut Express/Final Cut Pro with a conversion software.

With my experience, I would like to recommend the Mac Panasonic HDC-TM700K 1080/60p to Final Cut Express/Final Cut Pro Converter to you, not only because the Panasonic HDC-TM700K to FCE/FCP Converter Mac is the latest Converter that can convert Panasonic HDC-TM700K to FCE/FCP perfectly, but also it is the best conversion software I have used.
