PHP can be a hard nut to crack when it comes to search engine optimization. PHP developers encounter a lot of technical issues while creating PHP scripts based on SEO guidelines. The web pages needed to be constantly, and manually, modified. The web development industry was lacking such web sites that were dynamic and would update automatically. The Born of PHP as a web application development language ended up this issue and the era of dynamic (or auto updating sites) has risen since the acceptance of PHP as a web application development language.

Unlike ASP / ASP.Net and JAVA, PHP doesnâ€™t require any specified framework to build a web application. PHP based web applications can be developed using any IDE on any platform with any local host installed. This means that unlike .net framework for asp applications and JVM for java based applications PHP doesnâ€™t require any strict or specified framework or environment and this is one of the best benefits of PHP Development.

With PHP, you can make the necessary update easily with just a few mouse clicks. Last but not least, you would get enough support for the community of developers when you have a problem. It is growing and expanding their horizons, so that you can walk through time and everything necessary for their advancement.
