Android is undoubtedly the lead runner in the world of smart phones. IPhone, Blackberry, Windows and Symbian smart phones are in no way up to the androidâ€™s standard when compared with one. To an android addict, the idea of viewing the android world on pc, laptop etc. would sound unbelievable at first. However, BlueStacks, the Californian Company has made it all possible for android addicts and for those who desire to experience once. Now it is not that impossible to download your favorite applications on pcâ€™s and laptops. Imagine your favorite apps on large screens with improvised sound and picture effects which will enhance your android experience. The applications which used to keep you glued to your smart phone is now all available online i.e. as the apps for windows and all you need to do is download the application, install and run it. There were approximately 600 thousand downloads for the particular run android for pc software in the 1st year itself. Moreover, since then, there has been no looking back.

A few steps need to be followed to run android for pc. The software needs to be first downloaded on the android. Once the downloading and the installation are complete, the user is required to take a backup of the downloaded software on the android device itself. The user also requires installing the BlueStacks application on pc for example. The backup files are hereby then transported to the pc and then imported in the application environment.

However not all apps that is available on the Google play store can be downloaded for the windows use. This is because some of the android applications require the GPS feature and the others require information from your mobile. However, the major drawback is that the BlueStacks designed apps for windows are still of the Beta version. Where these apps are not up to the mark yet, it has definitely raised the expectations of android users all over the world who are now waiting for the paid versions and pro version of these apps to come up with eager eyes.
