With the advancement in technology, notebooks have now almost replaced the markets of desktops and personal computers. All the leading IT brands have focused on manufacturing high quality and technically advanced notebooks, in order to stay ahead in competition. Sony is one among them. Earlier, Sony started its business with digital cameras and video cams. After setting up its empire, and seeing the high market growth of notebooks, Sony expanded its horizons to the manufacturing of notebooks named as Sony Vaios.

Though manufactured using advanced technologies, even the Sony Vaios are not untouched by the common computer errors and technical issues. For resolving these technical problems, Sony also offers its customer support services in the form of Sony support, through the Sony customer care. But, the only issue with the Sony computer support offered by Sony is that, it doesnâ€™t have the on-site support facility. In addition, the costs for the repair services by the Sony Centre are very high and can get heavy to your pockets.
