Facebook the rage of today, enticing people from all walks of life, pampering more than 800 million active users as of July 2011, needs no introduction. It syncs school friends, work friends, close friends and family at one platform, offering you to share views, opinions, photos and albums. The instant text and video chat option bestows you to have real-time conversation. Smartphones and tablets have elevated the Facebook popularity leveraging you to stay connected from anywhere round the clock.

Ever been in Facebook issues, enduring the frustration? It may happen; being a software part there is no exception to it. Problems could be many; it may be due to the faulty settings of the Facebook account, browser or the Windows Firewall. Disrupted Internet connection and router issues can also jump into, thus leaving you puzzled. Most of the times, you can fix the Facebook related problems on your own. You can power cycle your router and modem. Run any trusted security software to scan and remove viruses, spyware or other responsible culprits. Updating or reinstalling the Ethernet driver and configuring the Windows Firewall could fix the error. Either you modify the Facebook to work with the firewall or vise-versa. Failures that are related to the default firewall configuration happen when the client program i.e. browser is unable to receive data from the Facebook server. If a program is being blocked, you may receive corresponding Windows Firewall Security Alert. This can be addressed by adding Facebook in the exception list of the firewall through the Windows Security Center. Likewise, problems can come from the installed security software. Can you think the otherwise? No, not at all, as going san security settings will mean inviting viruses and malware. You might be aware with various noted Facebook scams, where users have been duped with their personal information many a time through alluring links and videos, with attractive titles related to current affairs mostly, often pretending to be posted from your trusted friends. Thus, provoking you to go ahead, and like the link to let the fraudsters accomplished his task.

Myriad of tech support services are available to sail you smooth with the Facebook, and you can contact on the Facebook support number to let experts fix your problem. Luckily, the remote technology has stepped into, and you may enjoy the support through the highly secure Internet connection at the comfort of your home or office. Technicians can help you with Facebook sign up, features, managing account, setting up privacy, apps, social plug-ins, video conferencing, and more. They can help you to setup and configure Facebook accounts with smartphones or handheld devices. Expertsâ€™ assistance is available on-demand to fix problems with creating a new account, and resolve login or password issues, and restore hacked, scammed or phished, disabled, warned or blocked account.

In the wake of emerging Internet threats and Google + as a potent contender, the brand has re-engineered the security settings. New features, are quite easy to deploy and manage, instead of contacting on Facebook phone number you can configure your account to manage the privacy of status updates, photos, and profile info with the help of inline audience selector. In the Tagging section, you can now choose to approve when youâ€™re tagged before it gets posted. In fact, facial recognition technology is in the pipeline to enhance the security settings.

Understanding the popularity of the Facebook, many computer support vendors are catering technical assistance for the same, and their services are easily accessible over the phone line. However, legitimacy and reliability of the service providers must be affirmed before you take a dip. Donâ€™t get puzzled when you have too many Facebook phone numbers, have a sense of what their existing customers have to say about the company and its services. Be a smart user and follow basic security tips: keep security software up to date, ignore suspicious links and use available security tools with the program to stay safe against malware, phishing, or a scam.
